Guidelines Call for Proposal

This is a call for proposals (CfP) organized by MFC and CERISE within the project TRANSFORM TOGETHER FUND (TTF): Green and digital transition fund for social finance actors and microentrepreneurs. The project is funded by the European Commission under the Employment and Social Innovation (EaSI) strand of the European Social Fund Plus (ESF+)¹.

Background:

Microenterprises represent over 90% of European enterprises and are thus decisive for boosting jobs, growth, and investment in Europe. Among microbusinesses many are set up by marginalized and/or vulnerable groups such as low-income people, migrants/refugees, and women. These businesses, however, often lag in the digitalization or green effort due to the lack of sufficient information about available solutions: e.g. how to minimize environmental risks, how to be more resilient to changes, how to use certain new technologies to strengthen or expand their business. They often perceive investment in green or digital solutions as expensive and with no return on investment in the medium term (2-3 years). The COVID-19 pandemic revealed female microentrepreneurs were able to use financial services to a much lesser extent than male microentrepreneurs, due to lower digital skills and as a result, their income generating activities diminished. The arriving energy crisis will most impact the vulnerable, smallest businesses, both in urban and rural areas. Moreover, year to year, we observe the small farming businesses in rural areas are impacted most from climate change, as their size hardly allows for tackling challenges related to lower yields and smaller incomes. The recent disasters related to climate change (floods, fires, etc.) invading Europe showed the microbusinesses sites are weakly secured and subject to asset losses.

Scope and objectives:

This Call for Proposals (CfP) aims at supporting social finance actors to develop and test specific green and/or digital solutions among vulnerable microentrepreneurs groups.

The TTF is looking to support new, innovative green or/and digital approaches or solutions which will benefit vulnerable microentrepreneurs groups.

The new, innovative approach is considered as something new in the market where an applicant operates or new for a specific target group (solution may exist in the market but no one has adopted and provided such solution to the proposed target group) or new for the institution (in such a case a justification will be requested on how it will be similar and differ from other social economy players in the market).

The applicant may choose to focus on one theme: green or digital in their application (it is not necessary to work on both themes).

Eligible participants (applicants):

To be eligible, the applicant must:

- be a legal entity;
- be established in one of the EU countries (including overseas countries and territories) or Norway;
- be a social finance actor: microfinance institution (any legal entity providing microfinance), social finance provider, national microfinance / social finance association, non-governmental organization or regional network working on financial inclusion.

Target groups (beneficiaries) which should benefit from the proposed action:

Vulnerable microentrepreneurs groups (including farmers): low income, women, migrants/refugees.

The expected results and outcomes of the action co-financed under this call are the following:

- New knowledge or skills related to green or digital approaches/solutions gained by beneficiaries;
- Attitude change towards new solutions related to green/digital when conducting/running business (by beneficiaries);
- Implementation of solutions, that enable beneficiaries to apply green or digital practices in their businesses;
- New green or digital solutions implemented by the beneficiaries.

Examples of activities that can be funded:

- Capacity building activities (e.g. trainings) for beneficiaries or applicant organization (if the capacity building activity is for the applicant staff, it must clearly demonstrate how the beneficiary will benefit from knowledge gained by the organization staff).
- Actions that lead to developing and testing new social innovation approaches/solutions related to green and/or digital from which beneficiary will benefit (e.g., their business will introduce new digital/green solutions).
- Developing and testing solutions which will help to reach beneficiaries to offer already developed educational activities or products which will make them more digital/green.

- Research activities that lead to developing and testing a solution (though research results cannot be the outcome of the project).
- Creating ecosystem (partnerships) that will help beneficiaries apply green or digital practices (i.e. ecosystem to utilize business waste that destroys the environment).
- Activities related to innovative green/digital product development.
- Promoting green/digital microentrepreneurs and their relevant practices.
